IV. 閱讀測驗：下面兩篇短文共有 10 題，每篇各有 5 題，為第 41–50 題，請閱讀短文後，選出最適當的答案。

▲ 閱讀下文，回答第 41–45 題

Ebola virus disease (EVD) is a highly contagious disease of humans and other animals caused by Ebola virus (EBOV). Direct contact with blood or other body fluids of the infected helps spread the virus. It is believed that African fruit bats are the carriers in nature, which are able to transmit EBOV to humans, or living or dead animals which have been infected by the bats. After human infection happens, the disease may become an epidemic, spreading among humans.

There are a variety of symptoms, such as sore throats, headaches, muscle pains, vomiting, diarrhea, rashes, and fevers. The symptoms normally begin between two days and three weeks after contracting the virus. When the worse symptom of diminished function of the kidneys and liver occurs, some infected humans might bleed both internally and externally. This is a highly deadly disease, able to kill between 50 percent and 90 percent of those infected with the virus. The causes of death mainly result from stroke, myocardial infarction, or organ failure. Unfortunately, there is no specific treatment or confirmatively effective vaccine available for the virus.

Medical services and prevention are needed to control EVD outbreaks. The medical services consist of swift quarantine of EVD cases, tracking those who have come into contact with infected people, appropriate care of the infected, and cremation or burial of the dead. Prevention requires how to restrain EVD spreading from infected animals to humans. This can be achieved by wearing protective clothing when humans handle possibly infected wild animal meat. It is crucial to wash hands with disinfectants when humans stay with those who have contracted the disease. In addition, body fluids and tissues from the infected individuals have to be dealt with cautiously.

41. Which of the following is NOT one of the symptoms of EVD according to the passage?
(A) Diarrhea.                      (B) Poor digestion.                      (C) Muscle pains.                      (D) Sore throats.
42. According to the passage, which of the following may spread Ebola virus?
(A) Monkeys.    (B) Wombats.
(C) African fruit bats.    (D) Brown bears.
43. What is the second paragraph mainly about?
(A) An introduction to Ebola virus disease.
(B) The symptoms of Ebola virus disease.
(C) The ways to control EVD outbreaks.
(D) The causes of death as a result of EVD.
44. What does the word “This” in the third paragraph refer to?
(A) Quarantine.                      (B) Infection.                      (C) Prevention.                      (D) Cremation.
45. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passage?
(A) The prevention measures of EVD.
(B) The symptoms of EVD.
(C) The carriers of EBOV.
(D) The history of Ebola virus disease.

The concept of a working holiday is fairly simple. It is a vacation which normally lasts for several weeks or even months, during which you divide your time between work and recreation. The typical working holiday includes some manual labor and sightseeing. You can usually get room and board in exchange for a few hours of work. For instance, Australia and New Zealand encourage working holidays by offering one-year visas to people between the ages of 18 and 30. Countries all over the world offer the chances to work or volunteer and live in a new environment. All you need is a return ticket and enough cash to live on.

While some people choose to work in restaurants or hotels, others may do fruit picking which is perhaps the most popular type of work. Be prepared for long working days in the orchard, which may last up to ten hours a day. If you are not ready for this, a more leisurely job with shorter hours is possible, but you will not make as much money. Another option is volunteering in foreign countries. For example, you can work with disabled children in Bolivia and practice your Spanish, research dolphins and whales in Italy, or build schools in rural towns in Ghana.

A working holiday is a great way to broaden your horizons since it gives you the chance to explore a country, practice a new language, and meet people from all over the world. These kinds of adventures sometimes have a really big impact on those who have experienced a working holiday. They often say that it was one of the best memories of their lives. Be aware! Even though some working vacation programs pay, not all of them do; sometimes you end up paying to go on working vacation. However, a working holiday can get you off the beaten track and into spots the average tour bus would never go near.

46. About working holidays, which of the following is NOT mentioned in the passage?
(A) Advantages. (B) Work habits.
(C) Working hours. (D) Types of work.
47. According to the passage, what can you get in exchange for a few hours of work?
(A) A board you can use to sleep on.
(B) Transportation to different cities.
(C) A place to stay and some food to eat.
(D) Friendship that will last a lifetime.
48. Which of the following is NOT a requirement of a working holiday as mentioned in the passage?
(A) You need to have the money to support yourself.
(B) You have to be at a certain age in order to qualify for it.
(C) You need to have an airline ticket back to your home country.
(D) You have to present your medical records.
49. In the third paragraph, what does the word “it” refer to?
(A) A new language. (B) A working holiday.
(C) A big impact. (D) A foreign country.
50. What does “get off the beaten track” in the third paragraph most likely mean?
(A) Go to places that few tourists have ever been to.
(B) Visit people you have not seen for a long time.
(C) Pay money for room and board.
(D) Enjoy yourself and do not work too hard.
